Uber indicated that it intends to implement a validation process after production of documents from 20 custodians. The Court and the parties discussed a potential dispute regarding hyperlinked documents, including Plaintiffs' request for Uber to audit its production to ensure that hyperlinked document families have been produced correctly and metadata has been provided. The Court instructed the parties to meet and confer following the conclusion of the status conference. The parties indicated that they intend to file a stipulation to extend certain discovery deadlines. The Court and the parties discussed a dispute regarding production of Uber employee deponents' personnel files. The Court ordered that Uber need not produce background check materials, performance evaluations, or compensation information for deponents unless Plaintiffs present a particularized need for such materials from specific deponents. The parties shall meet and confer regarding any related disputes. The Court and the parties discussed a dispute regarding a subpoena served by Plaintiffs on their own counsel Bret Stanley for materials from previous litigation. The Court indicated that production of relevant documents (but not necessarily all documents) by Stanley would likely promote efficiency.
